“Colonization has not frozen everything into stable categories. The world is open and emergent and poetic and promiscuous.”

– Bayo Akomolafe in Closer to Home

Closer to Home is all yours! Find it freely available online, and share it with the world.

A global, corporate economy is divorcing us from nature, from each other, and from ourselves. From the heart of darkness of a civilization in crisis, a very different path is starting to emerge.

Closer to Home is the voice of a worldwide movement that cannot be ignored. On every continent, people are rejecting the corporate-led consumer monoculture, and coming home to community, to nature, and to their deeper selves.

From the ground up, they are giving rise to a radically new politics, and shifting the economy: from global to local.

Join the online premiere + live Q&A

This Friday, June 21, is World Localization Day. We will be hosting premieres of ‘Closer to Home’ in three different timezones. Each screening will be followed by a live webinar with inspiring voices from the film, like Satish Kumar, John Perkins, Rutendo Ngara, Manish Jain, and more.

The events will held online via Zoom and are free of charge. Visit the event page for more details and choose your timezone and favourite speakers.

Host a screening

Closer to Home can help activate a localizing vision for your community. Use this template to design your own flyer – just add a date, time, and location, and share it with your networks.

Remember, it doesn’t have to be a big event. Sometimes, the most meaningful film screenings involve just a small group of like-minded individuals.

We hope our new film helps inspire you.

All our best,

the Local Futures team
